The Tasmanian Government is providing financial support for training to people who have lost their jobs because they have been made redundant, the place they worked has closed or had to let staff go. Rapid Response funding can be used to pay for training (up to $2,500) that will help you find a new job. Funding can also be used for career advice, to help you decide on the best training for you (Up to $500). Through Rapid Response, you can get help to pay for nationally recognised qualifications. You can also get funding for occupational tickets and licences like white cards and responsible service of alcohol.
